Guess what? A holiday!! When? Monday, April 30th!! Why? Queen Juliana's birthday!!

Guess again--Another holiday!!! When? Thursday, May 3!! Why? A religious holiday, Ascension Day!!!

HURRAH!! HURRAH!! HURRAH!!!

RESERVE NEXT WEEKEND FOR VARIETY SHOW

Here it is - only one week until we present the Variety Show! There is going to be great concentration so that a really good opening performance will be held on Friday, May 18th, at 8:00 p. m., and also on Saturday, May 5th at 1:30.

Let's see who is on the program..... first, our gratitude should go to the directors, Miss Hutchinson, who is directing "The Kings of 'Nomania" and "Diapers Galore"; Miss Larson, who is responsible for the skits; and Miss Driscoll, who is directing the Seventh Grade play, "The Ghost Hunters". Last but not least, we come to Mrs. J. Pace who is directing the "Charleston Chocolate Drops". We also thank Mr. J. Leary for the stage setting. For one measly guilder, you get to see all of these wonder-plays plus additional entertainment. The adult charge will be two guilders.

The three skits are all original masterpieces: one by Mrs. Pace entitled "Charleston Chocolate Drops", one by the 8 B class called "Diapers Galore", and one by four famous sophomore boys entitled "Junior Prom or Bust". There are two or three tap routines, several vocal solos by Florence Josephson and MaryJean Owen, a duet by Nancy Koopman and Aileen McReynolds, a mixed quartet, a trombone duet by Stuart Hayes and John Dodge, and a piano medley (whatever that can be) by Gea Huising.

To the Board of Governors goes our appreciation and thanks for the use of the Lago Club Theatre.

Good luck to all of the participants in the show --- we know your performance can't be anything but successful.

L. Kingus

DEAR STUDENTS OF LAGO HIGH:

We wish to express our appreciation to all the pupils and to their mothers who contributed to the success of the Junior Bakesale on Saturday. The highly satisfactory sum of Fl. 375 was earned. As you know, this is for the Junior Prom on June 2.

Many pans, tins, plates, etc. have been turned in to the oppice that are as yet unclaimed. If any of these articles belong to you, please claim them.

Thank you,
The Junior Class

P. S. You can expect a super Prom.

CANTEEN WILL HOLD DANCE TOMORROW

There will be an informal dance, given by the Canteen, tomorrow night at the Lower Church Patio.

The dance begins at 7:30 P.M. and will last until 11:00 P.M. Music "a la can" will be provided and drinks will be sold for 15¢.

Why not drop in for an evening of informal dancing?

13 SENIORS ACCEPTED BY COLLEGES

Much to the surprise of several of Lago's teachers, more than half of the Senior Class has been accepted at colleges in the States. The intellectuals will probably begin their cerebral pursuits in September.

The "brains" who have been accepted are as follows:

- Joe Carroll                   Gonzaga University
                                  Spokane, Washington
- Penny Richey                Knox College
                                  Galesburg, Illinois
- Jim Baggaley                Knox College

- Zelda Fields                Judson College
                                  Marion, Alabama
- Ronald Turner               Washington University
                                  St. Louis, Mo.
- Ann Jamieson                S. W. Business College
                                  Houston, Texas
- Xenia Schwartz             S. W. Business College
                                  Houston, Texas
- Gleb Aulov                   Tulane University
                                  New Orleans, La.
- Kathleen Spitz             University of Indiana
                                  University of Michigan
                                  University of Miami
- Nancy Morris                Miami, Ohio
- Millsaps College
                                  Jackson, Mississippi
- Bill Burbage                U. of South Carolina
                                  U. of South Carolina

GOGGLEFISHERS

The gogglefishers that infest this school are beyond all doubt the biggest, bravest and braggin'st people I have ever run across. They also have such quick and vivid imaginations that if they could add just a spark of realism to their fantastic tales, they might make a living writing fish stories. They never go gogglefishing but what they don't run into a twelve or fourteen foot shark or two. They certainly are a close knit bunch, though. No matter how fantastic one of their tales gets to be, the others will stand by it and swear that it's the gospel truth, and amazingly enough, any (Con't on Page 3, Col. 1)

EDITORIAL

How would you like to have two more hours every afternoon of the week to spend as you want? We of the Pan-O-Ram (may it rest in peace) believe that this is possible.

As you all know, we spend (7 x 45 = 315 minutes, or 5 hours and 15 minutes.) ah yes, 5 hours and 15 minutes in class. Actually we spend 5 hours, 40 minutes in school.

Here are a few suggestions:

- (1) Start at eight o'clock and have 4 classes regular length to 11:15. Then have a half hour break for lunch. All the students could bring their lunches and a Coke machine could be installed. At 11:45 classes would start and at 2:10 school would be dismissed.
- (2) Start at 7:00 and have 4 classes at regular length to 10:15. Have maybe a 45 minute break for lunch and Cokes and begin classes at 11:00. Then at 1:25 school would be dismissed.
- (3) Start at 7:45 and five classes with a slightly longer break between 3rd and 4th periods for Cokes. Then dismiss at 11:55. Have school begin at 1:00. Then school could be dismissed at 2:30.

Think it over! (Some parents may wonder about the safety factor about the 12:00 and 1:00 times. Notice in the 3rd suggestion that school would be dismissed 5 minutes before 12. By 12:00 the roads would be more or less clear except for a few stragglers. It seems that setting the school time in the P.M. at 1:15 was worse than at 1:00 because nearly everyone leaves home just about 12:55 or 1:00, so starting school at 1:00 would actually be safer.)

Another thing for discussion is the fact that there is no place for students to sit before school. I believe there is a place in the school rules that students are not to sit on the cement rails on the second floor and I know students are not allowed to sit on the steel railing. It is forbidden to sit on the stairs and it is not very comfortable or clean to sit on the floor. The library is supposed to be quiet even with 25 kids milling around, and no teacher can do anything with 15 or 20 kids sitting in their homeroom talking. How about this problem? S. Evans

GOGGLE FISHING

by Whittier Drew

One fine day a boat was seen
a-leaving from the dock,
One fine day a boat was seen
a-floating like a rock.

The poor old craft was loaded down
with goggle-fishers galore,
All going out to catch some fish
so they could brag some more.

Sam and Mike and Billy, too,
and crazy names like that,
So loaded down with guns and spears
all in the boat they sat.

You see, these boys are very brave,
hunting for fish in waters deep,
And when they see those fish around
--back in the boat they leap!

Now let me give you this account
of how they play this sport,
They dive - they swim - they gasp
for air --
and with the fish cavort!

"A shark, a shark! I see a shark,"
yells Bert to Billy Mello
"My God, a shark," cries Billy boy,
"my nerves have turned to Jello!"

"Look over there - is that a fish?
Oh, wow, is that a whopper!!"
"Stand back," says sure-shot Dominic
"and with my gun I'll pop 'er."

"Oh, Dominic," cries our boy Moyer,
"come help me quick I pray,
I've seen a monster big and broad -
a nasty old sting ray!!"

And that is how it sometimes goes,
a shark, ray, eel, or two,
Or pampano, and fat cavoli,
and thrills that are not few.

But really they're a great old bunch
--a strong and hardy lot,
Those boys who go down to the sea
with guns,
and bring back the fish they've shot.

DIRECTIONS:

Insert letters in blank spaces so that the horizontal lines show the words that are defined at the right.

I've seen thus far have managed to keep a straight face while doing so. One thing I'll say for them, they know the names and habits of all the marine life in the Caribbean. But then, they ought to. Just about every period I spend in the library I find them slumped over encyclopedias or some other books dealing with undersea life.

Some of the same bunch of guys who used to listen with a look of disbelief on their faces to the heroic exploits of other gogglefishers have now taken up this pastime themselves and even surpassed their proteges at the art of whopper-telling. I have one particular Missouri Mule in mind when I say that. I still remember how he used to listen with a bored look on his face to the excited ramblings of Art Whitney, Tom Tucker and other tycoons of the previous generation of gogglefishers. After they had finished and left he'd ask in a disgusted tone, "Are we expected to believe that malarkey? This same staunch ex-anti-goggle-fishing advocator has since been bitten by the bug himself, and is now one of the most enthusiastic of the group. Maybe the gogglefishing bug will bite me one of these days and I'll go around telling whoppers with the best of them, but I seriously doubt it.

The only explanation I can imagine for this apparent madness is that they have discovered a school of mermaids down there and go around telling these fantastic shark stories to try and keep everybody else away. I know one thing for danged sure. If it's as dangerous down there as they make out, that's the last place in the world you'd find Bill Moyer. On the other hand if there really is a school of mermaids down there... well.....what do you think? W. Burbage

Dear Diary,

Nothing exciting today. Movie dull, but then what can you expect of Roy Rogers? Trigger was up to his usual best though. Why are people so surreptitious about who they hold hands with? I nearly broke my neck to see what was going on in the row in back of me.

Devotedly-- Debbie

Dear Diary,

Did you notice my new grey hairs. Wait 'till you've almost been run down by Joyful Joe astride a motorcycle. Just whose deal is that anyway?

Alas and alack. The gag rule is being enforced in history class. No longer do we hear the exiting adventures of Mickey Mouse in Moscow, colorfully narrated by Donald Duck (Cahill). Communism and Disney are both taboo.

Disappointedly--Debbie

Dear Diary,

Tinker's bound to keep in practice for basketball even though the season's over. Have you ever noticed that a low-necked dress makes a perfect substitute for a basket with paper wads as ammunition?

Heard about the dance at the Church patio on Saturday. We get soft lights and loud music and occasionally a dance with a boy! Have you ever heard that line about not being in the "mood" for dancing? Nothing like sitting around waiting to be asked and having someone say casually "You know, I don't think I feel like dancing tonight". Then what the heck is he doing at a dance anyway?

Desperately--- Debbie

Dear Diary,

Had a Toni today and I'm sick and tired of being told how I stink! What ever happened to the kind word that used to be spoken occasionally? I guess I can live without it, though.

Disconsolately-- Debbie

Dear Diary,

Joy, sweetness, light, and repose----- Friday again, and no cares, fears, or inhibitions until Tuesday. Here's to the week-end and good hunting.

Delightedly-- Debbie
